Maximol Solutions ~ The best selling mineral solution

Minerals are essential to life. At the basic level we are just minerals and water. The miracle of life is made from simple building blocks, equally life is maintained by making sure the balance of minerals is right, add to this good clean water and your chances of staying healthy into old age are likely to be increased.

We are all told to eat a balanced diet and at least 5 portions of fruit and vegetable a day. In a world seeming to lack common sense it seems obvious that a balanced diet is desirable, but the issue for most of us is how to achieve that from the foods we buy. Organic foods are the lifestyle choice for many of us but this still does not guarantee the nutritional content of the food, it does eliminate the man made toxins such as pesticides from entering the food chain but it still cannot guarantee the mineral content which is dependent on where its grown.

“We get all the minerals we need in food” is what you will hear from health care professionals, at least we used to, studies show a shocking reduction in the mineral content of food over the last 60 to 70 years, over farming and monoculture systems are thought to be mostly to blame.

Most people accept that poor diet leads to poor health, some of us choose to supplement in order to overcome the shortage in our food. But how do you choose? There is as much poor information as good and being informed can seem difficult.

As near natural as possible would seem to be the best idea, so having an understanding of how this can be achieved is helpful. In most cheap and readily available pill forms they are in a form that simply pass straight through the body, this is because we lack the mechanisms and body chemistry to break them down. Some are in a chelated form which means the mineral is able to be absorbed by the body in water but this is limited by the process of chelation and the quality of the process. Both types are sold by the amount of mineral in each but this measure indicates what is going in not what is available for use. Liquid minerals in an ionic form are the best natural substitute.

Neways' Maximol provides everything that could be needed in a mineral supplement and is enhanced with the addition of antioxidants, pre-biotics, amino acids, enzymes and vitamins. These additions make it more powerful because all the ingredients work together to enhance each other.

Maximol provides the greatest absorb-ability of any of the forms available, up to 98%. So may people have benefited from this product over the years, the benefits have been experienced by people who have bought in excess of 25 million bottles around the world. The sharing of the stories of some of those people has led to a better understanding of what drives good health.

I had suffered for many years with migraine headaches that caused me pain and discomfort and I took many painkillers that I knew were not good for me. I always take Maximol Solutions morning and evening. I didn't actually think that there was any change initially until I was reminded by my husband about my unpleasant headaches. Three months down the line, no headaches at all and this has continued for the past 14 years. It made me realise that we all have very short memories when it comes to our maladies, when they go, you forget about them.

The New Maximol Mini

And now your favourite drink is available in a travel size –the Maximol Mini. The 90ml size is six servings in a small convenient bottle, big enough to give you almost a week of the daily minerals and vitamins we all need , yet small enough to carry on the 'plane. The best of both worlds, power and convenience.

When you are on holiday or travelling for business you want to feel on top of the world and making sure you can keep up your daily intake is important. With travel restrictions on weight and size becoming more stringent, Neways have developed the perfect Travel Pack size of Maximol so you don't need to miss a day.

There is one more big plus, the Maximol Minis make great giveaway samples – a way of sharing the power of Maximol Solutions that can build new customers that may become new distributors and that can truly become a life changing event for you both.
